

Irish ShipWrecks Design Plan

Summary:

The goal of this website is to have a clean, simple, and technical. The simplicity and cleanliness will give a more user friendly experience while ensuring all users can easily find the information they are seeking. The technical look is to give the user the feeling of trust and portray the expertise of the information provided on the site. All buttons and links should be extremely clear and quite large to guarantee simplicity. The site should not have too many rounded edges to appear more modern and sharp. The secondary page is a table of contents for the Diver's Guide to Shipwrecks in Ireland and this information will be presented in a table. It should be plain where the user clicks to go to that section. I believe this is the best approach because users will trust the clean look of the site and find it far easier to use than the old site.
